

Last November Meeting....

Those attending the workshop at Horse Island, where Ray Brown caused a bit of angst, might be pleased to see the results of his work. Secretary Michele has sent some photos of the Grevilleas in recovery mode. Despite what looked a certain death sentence, the plants have all responded with great vigour, and are now pictures of vitality.

Proves again that heavy handed pruning can re-invigorate tired plants. Just make sure that after such action, the plants are well watered to encourage them to new growth.
